This mark of trust and confidence I shall to determine who was responsible for ever esteem as the highest honor that the accident. could be conferred upon me-sn honor that, whatever may be the fate of the campaign, the future can in no degree lessen or impair.

The admirable platform upon which the party appeals to the country for its confidence and support clearly states the principles which were so well condensed in the first inaugural address of President Jefferson, and points out with force and directness the course to be pursued through their proper application in order to insure needed reforms in both the legislative and administrative departments of the government.

Occasionally, by reason of nunecessary or impatient agitation for reforms, or because the limitations He will be at Hotel Lagomarsino for placed on the departments of government by the constitution are disregarded by officials desiring to accomplish that which to them seems good, whether the power exists in them or Porte. not, it becomes desirable to call attention to the fact that the people, in whom all power resides, have seen fit, through the medium of the constitution, to limit the governmental powers conferred and to say to departments created by it: "Thus far shalt thou go and no farther."

MACHINIST BURNED

STEAM TURNED ON WHILE HE WAS WORKING ON AN ENGINE.

Tom Leader, a machinist employed in the local Illinois Central shops, was painfully burned yesterday afternoon while working in the round house with a disabled engine.

The engine had steam up and Leader crawled under the big machine to adjust the workings when some one turned on the steam. The hot steam rushed out and struck Leader on the legs, burning them very painfully. His cries were heard and the steam shut off but not until he had been badly burned.

He was taken to the hospital and the burns dressed and will be laid off from duty for some time.

Suffering

Will Not Help Your Disease, but Will Weaken Your Nerves.

Folks who think it is better to bear pain than soothe it—are wrong.
Old-fashioned doctors used to say it was better, because they had nothing with which to ease pain but dangerous, But now, that a safe remedy has been found, Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills, it is wrong to suffer, for nothing can be gained but weakened nerves.

A safe rule to remember is: When in pain, take an Anti-Pain Pill.
This will soothe your quivering nerves.
Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills relieve pain by restoring the natural secretions, in which they differ from oplum and similar parcetic drues, which relieve pain flar narcotic drugs, which relieve pain by checking the action of the glands. They are sure and harmless, and are the latest medical treatment for the cure of Headache, Neuralgia, Backache, Rheumatism, Dizziness, Toothache, Stomachache, Menstrual (Monthly) Pains. WORLDS' FAIR PEOPLE.

Chicago, Aug. 10 .- The first result of the appeal of President Francis, of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, to the presidents of the various railroads to come to his assistance in securing better attendance at the fair has come, when the Illinois Central, the Chicago and Alton and other roads gave notice that, effective immediately and continuing until September 1, they would run daily coach within a radius of 160 miles. The rate for these excursions will be one cent a mile, and it is said that if this of people to attend the exposition certain railroads will announce still lower

There seems to be little That city is continually wrangling with the water company, the street car company and other public utilities. The water company and the city have been engaged in one continuous lawsuit for the past several years and are still at it, with the water company on top. The street car company a few years ago refused to build the proper kind of tracks when streets were being reconstructed because it cost a little money and it didn't want to spend it, and the council has just passed an ordinance requiring the tracks made right, which will cost the company about $35,000, where it would have cost comparatively little had it been done at the proper time.

All this, it seems, is because the men who run private corporations that depend on public patronage do not display the proper spirit of enterprise. The water company for years gave bad service at exorbitant rates, and finally brought public wrath down on its head. It is claimed it has not furnished adequate fire pressure since 1878. The electric lights furnished to private houses were so bad that the city installed a plant and itself entered the business, which pays more than the expense of running the en-having very little official enterprise, has the most progressive corporations to be found in the state. The water company is as complete as one can be made, it always gives the best possible service, and its rates are as cheap as can be found in the United States, and much cheaper than in a majority of places. It has in addition, at its 4.50 $100,000 filter as a further proof of its progressiveness, in order to give the

The Blazed EDWARD

Copyright, 1902. by Stewart Edward White

So it was that Hilda Farrand gave ner lover confidence, brought him out his fanaticism, launched him afresh into the current of events. He remained in Chicago all that summer, giving orders that all work at the village of Carpenter should cease. With his affairs that summer we have little to do. His common sense treatment of the stock market, by which a policy of quiescence following an outright buy-ing of the stock which he had previously held on margins, retrieved the losses already sustained and finally put both partners on a firm financial footing. That is another story. So, too, is his reconciliation with an understanding of his sister. It came about through Hilda, of course. Perhaps in the inscruta-ble way of Providence the estrangewas of benefit, even necessary, for it had thrown him entirely within himself during his militant years.

Let us rather look to the end of the summer. It now became a question of reopening the camps. Thorpe wrote to Shearer and Radway, whom he had re-tained, that he would arrive on Saturday noon, and suggested that the two begin to look about for men. Friday. himself, Wallace Carpenter, Elizabeth Carpenter, Morton, Helen Thorpe and Rilda Farrand boarded the north bound

"There is the Canada balsam," he cried. "Do you remember how I showed It to you first? And yonder the spruce. How stuck up your teeth were when you tried to chew the gum before it had been heated! Do you remember? Look, look there! It's a white pine! Isn't it a grand tree? It's the finest tree in the forest, by my way of thinking, so tall, so straight, so feathery and so dignifled. See, Hilda, look quick! There's an old logging road all filled with raspber-ry vines. We'd find lots of partridges there, and perhaps a bear. Wouldn't you like to walk down it about sunset?"

"Yes, Harry." "I wonder what we're stopping for. Seems to me they are stopping at every squirrel's trail. Oh, this must be Seney. Yes, it is. Queer little place, isn't it, but sort of attractive? Good deal like our town. You have never seen Carpenter, have you? Location's fine anyway, and to me it's sort of picturesque. You'll like Mrs. Hathaway. She's a buxom, motherly woman who runs the boarding house for eighty men and still finds time to mend my clothes for me. And you'll like Solly. Solly's the tug captain, a mighty good fellow, true as a gun barrel. We'll have bim take us out some still day. We'll be there in a few minutes now. See the cranberry marshes. Sometimes there's a good deal of pine on little islands scattered over it, but it's very hard to log unless you get a good winter. We had just such a proposition when I worked for Radway. Oh, you'll like

"Yes," replied his sister.
"I want you to know Radway. He's the man who gave me my start."
"All right, Harry," laughed Helen. "I'll meet anybody or anything from bears to Indians."

Radway. He's as good as gold. Helen!"

"I know an Indian, too Geezigut, an Ojibway. We called him Injun Charley. He was my first friend in the north woods. He helped me get my timber. This spring he killed a man-a good job, too-and is hiding now. I wish I knew where he is. But we'll see him some day. He'll come back when the thing blows over. See! See!"

"What?" they all asked, breathless. "It's gone. Over beyond the hills there I caught a glimpse of Superior."

You are ridiculous, Harry," protested Helen Thorpe laughingly. "I never w you so. You are a regular boy." Do you like boys?" he asked gravely of Hilda.

"Adore them!" she cried. "All right; I don't care," he answered his sister in triumph. The air brakes began to make themselves felt, and shortly the train came to a grinding stop,

"What station is this?" Thorpe asked the colored porter.

"Shingleville, sub," the latter replied.

"I thought so. Wallace, when did their mill burn, anyway? I haven't heard about it." "Last spring, about the time you went down." "Is that so? How did it happen?"

"They claim incendiarism," parried

Wallace cautiously.

Thorpe pondered a moment, then laughed. "I am in the mixed attitude of the small boy," he observed, "who isn't wicked enough to wish anybody's property destroyed, but who wishes that if there is a fire, to be where he can see it. I am sorry those fellows had to lose their mill, but it was a good thing for us. The man who set that fire did us a good turn. If it hadn't been for the burning of their mill they would have made a stronger fight against us in the stock market." Wallace and Hilda exchanged glances. The girl was long since aware of the inside history of those days.

"You'll have to tell them that," she whispered over the back of her seat

> "Our station is next!" cried Thorpe, "and it's only a little ways. Come,

They all crowded into the narrow passageway near the door, for the train barely paused. "All right, sah," said the porter, swinging down his little step.

Thorpe ran down to help the ladies He was nearly taken from his feet by a wildcat yell, and a moment later that result was actually accomplished by a rush of men that tossed him bodily on to its shoulders. At the same mo ment the mill and tug whistles began to screech and miscellaneous firearms exploded. Even the locomotive engineer in the spirit of the occasion, leaned The sawdust street was filled with screaming, jostling men. The homes of the town were brilliantly draped with cheesecloth, flags and bunting.

For a moment Thorpe could not make out what had happened. This turmofi was so different from the dead quiet of desertion he had expected that he was unable to gather his faculties. All about him were familiar faces upturn ed to his own. He distinguished the broad, square shoulders of Scotty Par sons, Jack Hyland, Kerlie, Bryan Moloney; Ellis grinned at him from the press; Billy Camp, the fat and shiny drive cook; Mason, the foreman of the mill; over beyond howled Solly, the tug captain; Rollway Charley, Shorty. the chore boy; everywhere were fea-tures that he knew.

As his dimming eyes traveled here and there, one by one the Fighting Forty, the best crew of men ever gathered in the northland, impressed themselves in his consciousness. On the outskirts sauntered the tail form of Tim Shearer, a straw peeping from beneath his flax white mustache, his eyes glimmering under his flax white eye-

Big Junko and Anderson deposited their burden on the raised platform of the office steps. Thorpe turned and fronted the crowd.

At once pandemonium broke loose, as though the previous performance had been nothing but a low voiced rehear-

"Oh, aren't you proud of him?" gasp ed Hilda, squeezing Helen's arm with a little sob.

In a moment Wallace Carpenter, his countenance glowing with pride and pleasure, mounted the platform and stood beside his triend, while Morton and the two young ladies stopped half way up the steps.

At once the racket ceased. Every one stood at attention.

"Mr. Thorpe," Wallace began, "at the request of your friends here, I have a most pleasant duty to fulfill. They have asked me to tell you how glad FOREMAN HAS HAND MASHED. they are to see you. That is surely unnecessary. They have also asked me to congratulate you on having won the fight with our rivals."

It is a fact and should be frankly conceded that should our party be successful in the coming contest we cannot hope to secure a majority in the senate during the next four years and hence we shall be unable to secure any modification in the tariff, save that to which the Republican majority in the senate may consent. While, therefore, we are unable to give assurances of relief to the people from such excessive duties as burden them, it is due to them that we should state our position to be in favor of a reasonable reduction of the tariff.
